
2010 ASM/JGI Functional Genomics Institute Institutional Form

All application materials must be submitted electronically as attached documents to facultyprograms@asmusa.org with the following subject line: ASM-JGI Functional Genomics Institute [insert applicant name here]. Applications are due on or before February 15, 2010.

Name _____
(First Name) (Middle Initial) (Last Name)

Institutional Name _____

Department _____

Campus Address _____

City/State/ZIP/Country _____

Institutional type (select one response only)

- Community college
- Primary undergraduate college
- Comprehensive university
- Doctoral university
- Professional school
- Other

Total student enrollment (select one)

- Less than 2,000
- 2,001-5,000
- 5,001-15,000
- 15,001-25,000
- Greater than 25,000

Institutional setting (select one)

- Rural
- Suburban
- Urban

Primary student type to whom bioinformatics training is directed

- Biological sciences major (e.g., microbiology, genetics, cell biology, biochemistry, or biotechnology)
- STEM major but not biological sciences (e.g., physics, chemistry, or engineering)
- Nursing and allied health professions
- General education and/or non-science majors
- Other (describe) _____

Indicate % of students from underrepresented minority populations served at the institution.

- Black/African American
- Hispanic or Latino
- Pacific Islander or Native Alaskan
- Native American
- Asian American
- Caucasian

Questions about the application process should be directed to KaRyn Daley, Coordinator, Education Programs & Resources, kdaley@asmusa.org.